Bishops of the Anglican Communion who are assembled in the allrican conference of Bishops at Washington, have considered among many important the subject of its relation and attitude churches of the Roman obedience. of them, unless they submit to unlawful terms of communion.

That we should be more ready and outspoken than we have been in teaching our young people in our congregations as to the important matters on which there is difference between the Roman Church and ourselves, and in guarding them against being misled. That we most earnestly urge that in the case of marriages between members of our own church and those of the Roman Church, our own members should be warned by no means to promise, as they will be asked to do, that their children shall be brought up in the faith and worship of the Roman Church. The attitude of the Episcopal Church toward the Protestant communions around her was set forth in the following resolution adopted by the conference:

adopted by the conference:

Resolved, The Bishops present in the all American conference held in the city of Washington, having had under discussion the attitude of the Church to which they belong toward the Protestant communions around them, have been aroused anew to the manifold evils of that unhappy condition of disminin within the Church of Christ with which we are everywhere confronted to-day. While ardently desiring the cooperation of all Protestant communions, yet having regard to the paper read before us by the Bishop Coadjutor of Montreal as to the points of agreement and disagreement (but especially the former) between our Presbyterian and Methodist brethren and ourselves, we would respectfully suggest to the General Convention of the United States, the General Synod of Canada, and the Synod of the West Indies, the advisability of constituting committees to lay before the General Assembly and the General Conference the contents of that paper, and to invite them to take such other steps as to them may be deemed best to draw the attention of the several congregations to them.

to draw the attention of the several congregations to them.

We would also affectionately commend this most grave subject anew to the consideration of these Protestant communions and ask them to consider it seriously, with a view to arriving at intercommunion and possible union of them and us, through the composition of some of the differences, and the recognition that others do not constitute sufficient reasons for creating or continuing a rupture of that visible unity of the church for which our lord Jesus Christ prayed.

We are very thankful to believe that, notwithstanding differences between Christians, yet because of the wide acceptance of the underlying basic principle of baptismal unity, there is good hope of the fulfilment of our blessed Lord's high priestly prayer, which calls for constant thought and prayer and canscientious effort on the part of this disciples for the accomplishment of reunion throughout Christendom.

Christendom.

Believing that many of the evils now under review arise from the lack, both among our own people and others, of sufficient knowledge and proper understanding of our history and of the general principles of our organic church, we would urge the more common use of such publications and literature as will tend to supply this lack.

It was agreed that when the conference adjourned it should be to meet at the call of the Primate of All Canada at such time and place as he may appoint.

Resolutions on the question of remarriage after divorce were presented, but were not put to vote, the congress deciding that resolutions of such vital importance and far reaching influence should not be moved for adoption against the wishes of their bishops. The resolutions are as follows: Resolved, That the church's attitude toward

Resolved, That the church's attitude toward by questions of marriage and divorce, in order to protect the institutions of Christian marriage and the Christian family, should be a bold utterance of the sacred and mystical horacter of marriage, based upon the primal exclution of its character as reenacted by our Lord's own words, no more "twain, but me flesh," "what, therefore, God hath joined ogether, let no man put as under."

PEARY NEEDS MORE MONEY. | CHILDREN OWN SEWARD PARK

The $150,000 Required for His Expedition Not Yet All Secured.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 .- Explorer Peary ectured before the National Geographic Society this evening on Arctic discovery and his plans for reaching the North Pole. He said that the Dike of the Abruzzi, who, on the Franz Josef Land route, made the nearest approach to the pole vet achieved. is not in favor of that route for further attempts on the pole, but heartily indorses the Smith Sound route, which Peary intends to follow. The Italian explorer is of the opinion that, at the most, only a few miles further north could be gained by the Franz Josef Land route, and the results would not afford any compensation for the fatigue and privations undergone. He approves of the Smith Sound route because it affords the highest land base from which to start. Peary thinks it is entirely possible that a large land mass will be discovered between Greenland and the pole.

He has not yet secured all the money he needs to fit out his expedition next spring. On this point he said:

"The Peary Arctic Club, an unincorporated association of my personal friends, rated association of my personal friends, with Morris K. Jesup at its head, furnished the funds for the financing of my last four years of Arctic work. After my return last fall there was a general feeling of disinclination to drop the work uncompleted, when success had been so nearly won. This feeling took form in the proposition of the majority of the club to contribute in varying sums toward the outfitting of another expedition. Unfortunately, however, the total amount which these members of the club felt they could contribute, even with the accession of some new members, was not sufficient to properly fit out an expedition. Had it been sufficient I should have gone north last summer, and should now be settled down in winter quarters somewhere on the Grinnell Land coast.

"The same status helds to-day. The total amount which the members of the Peary Arctic Club feel that they can contribute to another expedition is insufficient to properly outfit the expedition. Additional members, either individuals or associations, are necessary to complete the total amount.

"It is essential that the total amount associations, are necessary to complete the total amount.

"It is essential that the total amount should be assured without delay. The sum of $150,000 to $200,000 between now and Jan. 1 will meet all requirements, and give ample time to properly fit out the expedition Six months from now it will be impossible to fit the expedition even with a half million available, because of lack of time.

"Somewhere in this broad country I am satisfied that the money is waiting, as ready and anxious to do this work as I am, if only the connection can be established. One thing is to be clearly understood. The Government is not financing the work. The funds must come from private sources.

thing is to be clearly understood. The dovernment is not financing the work. The funds must come from private sources.

"It may be said without egotism that a practical experience equalled by that of no other work in Arctic regions; an interest in the work at least equal to that of any other man; the utmost assistance of any other man; the utmost assistance of the Esquimaux, never before available; the time and the opportunity, thanks to Assistant Secretary Darling and the President; all these are assured, the only thing lacking is the money.

"On my plan, and with my methods, an expedition which would in all probability secure the Pole, can be fitted out for two years at a cost of $150,000. The only expensive item in that outfit will be a powerful ship which shall push me to the northern shore of Grant Land."

with Mr. Stover and they united in a chorus of "Hello, Mr. Stover!" He said:

I propose to address my remarks to the children insamuch as Mayor Low spoke to the children who laid the foundation store of older people a week ago. It is especially appropriate for me to address the children. It was the children used to play soldier here. On one occasion, in 1898, fifty-three children were arrested and brought to the Essex Market police court for playing here. It was the children of the Essex Market police court for playing here. It was the children of the Essex Side who first contributed for this playground, and not the city. The children of the East Side contributed $400 of their own pennies, and, therefore, I say, it is appropriate that this should be children's day.

When Mr. Stover and they united in a chorus.

VETERAN HAS TWELVE CHILDREN He Sends a Picture of His Family to the President and Receives a Reply.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.- President Roose velt is still receiving in nearly every mail commendation of his views on race suicide. The letters are usually from fathers or mothers of large families, and the writers generally do not fail to receive an acknowledgment from Secretary Loeb, at the President's direction.

H. E. Ward, an employee of the Pension Office in Washington, is the father of twelve children. The President recently replied children. The President recently replied through his secretary to the following letter from Mr. Ward:

from Mr. Ward:

Mr. President: Since it became known that you are an advocate of large families, I have been importuned by a great many people to present you with a picture of my family, which I now take pleasure in doing. I believe I am the only old soldier in the United States that has twelve children living, all by the same mother. They are all living at home, except one who was recently married. With one exception none of them have ever been seriously sick, and none have any physical defects. If the real object of man's existence is to glorify tood and rear another generation, my wife and I feel that we are entitled to some consideration by the tireat Father of us all. some consideration by us all.

I read with very great interest your address to the Catholics of New York, delivered one Sunday last summer. There is no doubt in my mind but what impure speech is a great drawback to the proper education and moral elevation of the youth of this country. I wish every man and woman in the land could read that address. It certainly would have a salutary effect. I thank you for those great utterance, the influence of which will be felt long after you have passed from the stage of action.

BRISTOW'S REPORT TURNED IN. It Consists of 3,365 Pages, Containing

1,000,000 Words. WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 .- The long report

YOUNGSTERS HAVE THEIR TURN AT THE DEDICATION.

Cheer Willeox When He Says He's Not Going to Speak-Chorus of 2,500 Little Ones Sing National Airs-Exhibitions by Big and Little Athletes.

The children of the East Side took posssion of Seward Park with a whoop yesterday. A week ago the dedication ceremonies were started with speeches by Mayor Low and other city officials, but the children's part in the programme was declared off on account of rain.

Yesterday the children had their day. The police estimated that there were between 15,000 and 18,000 persons in and around the park, and of these, at least twothirds were boys and girls.

The children just swept over the park. When Park Commissioner Willcox stood up to tell them that the playground was theirs, they were lined around the railings and massed in front of the pavilion on which the speakers' stand had been erected. Two hundred policemen, in charge of Inspector Schmittberger, Capt. Shaw of the Madison street station and four sergeants, kept the children in good order, but they couldn't control their voices and when Commissioner Willcox started to speak there was a shout that could have been heard a block.

"I did not come here for the purpose of making a ---," began Commissioner Will-"Hurrah!" shricked the children and for two minutes Mr. Willcox waited good naturedly while they cheered. Then he said that there would be no curbing of the young blood, and he turned to the older folks in the stand.

"Just a few words," he said. "After all these years Seward Park is at last completed. It belongs to the children. This is their day and their voices ought to be heard.

whoo-cop!" came from the children.
No one believed that they had heard Mr.
Willcox's words, but they seemed to have guessed the right moment.
When Commissioner Willcox could hear

When Commissioner Willcox could hear his own voice again, he said that he would always remember as the pleasantest feature of his administration that his first request of the city authorities was for funds with which to build Seward Park. Charles B. Stover, who has devoted his time and interests to the completion of Seward Park, was the next speaker. Every child there seemed to have a personal acquaintance with Mr. Stover and they united in a chorus of "Heilo, Mr. Stover!" He said:

entitled to special privileges, but that Commissioner Wildox was not of that type, the Commissioner was loudly cheered. The most impressive part of the cere-monies was the singing of national airs by the children. It was announced that 2,500 children from eleven public schools in the neighborhood of the prk would sing "The Star Spangled Banner" and "America." All the school children were there officially and about twenty-five hundred more sang, too.

The singing was followed by a gymnastic exhibition in charge of J. E. Sullivan and Evert Jansen Wendell. This interested the children more than anything else.

John Bissinger, all around gymnastic champion of America; Otto Steffin, chamchampion of America; Otto Steffin, cham-pion on the parallel bars, and teams from the St. Barthelomew A. C., Xavier A. A., Anchor A. C., Mohawk A. C., New Polo Association, New York A. C., Brooklyn Y. M. C. A., and other athletic clubs gave exhibitions.

This was followed by club swinging exhibitions and gymnestic work by teams from Seward Park, Hamilton Fish Park, Tempkins Park and DeWitt Clinton Fark. There was intense rivalry between the to from the different parks, and the children heeping greatly excited. No prizes were awarded and no decisions were made. Herry Cohen, a little shaver, described as "Seward Park's tiniest gymnast," then performed feats that were the envy of many of his older and sturdier brothers

OUR SEACOAST DEFENCES. Gen. Gillespie Reports That They Are More Than Half Completed.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.-In his annual report to the Secretary of War, Brig.-Gen. Gillespie, Chief of Engineers, says that the seacoast defences of the United States are now somewhat more than 50 per cent. completed. Twenty-five of the principal harbors of the United States have a sufficient number of heavy guns and mortars mounted to permit an effective defence against naval to permit an effective defence against naval attack, and during the past three years considerable progress has been made in the installation of an adequate rapid fire armament, now the matter of first importance.

The existing projects for seaccast defences comprise 538 heavy guns of 8-inch, 10-inch and 12-inch calibres; 1,294 rapid fire guns from 2.24-inch to 6-inch calibre, and 532 mortars. The total cost for the engineering work is estimated at $50,000,000, including what has been completed as well as what remains to be done.

Gen. Gillespie estimates that the follow-

COL. MEADE TO BE RETIRED. Was Brevetted Brigadier-General for His

Services in China. WASHINGTON, Oct. 24 .- Col. and Brevet Brig.-Gen. Robert L. Meade of the Marine Corps is to be retired from active service on Dec. 23 on account of disability. He will be succeeded in command of the marine barracks at Mare Island, Cal., by Col. P. C. Pole, and the latter will be relieved of the command of the Boston marine barracks by Col. A. C. Kelton, commanding marines at Newport.

Col. Meade is a brother of Gen. Meade, the victor of Gettysburg. He saw service in the civil and Spanish wars, in the Philippines insurrection and in the Pekin campaign of 1900. For his services in China he was serviced brigadier general. A few years be was charged with drunkenness on while in command of the marine barracks at the Brooklyn navy yard, and was acquitted.

Col. Meade was an applicant for the office of comandant of the Marine Corps to succeed Major-Gen. Haywood, and upon the selection of Col. Elliott for that place, he selection of Col. Elliott for that place, he applied for retirement as a Brigadier-General, his brevet rank. The Navy Department held that he could not be so retired. Col. Meade then withrdew his application for retirement, and in doing so made some caustic comments upon the manner in which he had been treated. These comments offended the Navy Department, which recommended to the President that Col. Meade be summarily retired upon reaching the age of 61 years, two years before the regular time of structure retirement, a law permitting the Presitwo years before the regular time of activities the president to take such action. Col. Meade will be 60 on Dec. 16, so that through his retirement for distibility on Dec. 23 he will lose only three days of the time allotted for his active service. Movements of Naval Vessels.

THE WESTERN LAND FRAUDS. Investigation Nearly Completed and the Report Partly Written. WASHINGTON, Oct. 24.-It was stated at the Interior Department to-day that the the Interior Department to-day that the investigation of the alleged gigantic land frauds in the West, which has been going on secretly for several months, is about completed, and a report of the conditions found is being written. Interior Department officers have heretofore refused to discuss the situation, and it was not until to-day that any official information could be obtained. The statement has finally been made, however, that the Interior Department is in full possession of all the facts, and its investigators are ready to submit a report.

facts, and its investigators are ready to submit a report.

It is known that the names of several Western Senators and Representatives are associated with the scandals, not as having directly instigated the frauds, but as having sought to shield the land grafters from justice. The investigators have proceeded with great caution and six months or more have been consumed in the investigation. The result is that evidence of the strongest kind sufficient to convict several persons, some of whom are in the Gereal Lend Office in Washington and others are prominent men on the Pacific Coast, has been found. It is expected that several guilty persons of minor importance, whose testimony is valuable to the prosecution, will turn state's evidence.

MADE RED HAIR THE ISSUE. How the Congressman From Jerry Simpson's District Won the Election.

WASHINGTON, Cct. 24 .- Senator Long of Washington, Cct. 24.—Senator Long of Kansas presented to the President to-day Representative Victor Murdock, the newly elected member of Congress from "Scckless" Jerry Simpson's district, in that State. Mr. Simpson is supposed to have gained many votes on the sockless issue, but Mr. Murdock made his campaign chiefly on the red hair issue. Mr. Murdock's hair is very red hair issue. Mr. Murdock's hair is very red.

Prior to the holding of the district convention which nominated him for Congress to succeed Mr. Long, there was a big field of candidates, Murdock and one other having red hair. The other red-haired candidate entered into an alliance with Murdock by which it was agreed that after the preconvention campaign had progressed long enough to determine which red-haired man was the more popular the losing candidate before the public should withdraw in favor of the other. Murdock won. He told the people of Kansas from the stump that the red-haired men were a considerable part of the population and that they should be represented in Congress. He was nominated and elected.
